To the Public: Having had considerable dealings with the Dr. B. J. Kay Medical Co., and used their remedies with remarkable success, I their remedies with remarkable success, I have no hesitancy in saying that I have the utmost confidence in the reliability of the company and the personal integrity of the doctor, as well as the merit of his great remedies, Dr. Kay's Renovator and Dr. Kay's Lung Balm. In my work among the unfortunate I find many sick and suffering who have not the means to purchase necessary medicine. Dr. B. J. Kay cheerfully offered to supply whatever medicine was needed in such cases free of charge, and through the kindness of the generous doctor I have carried relief to many a poor despondent heart. All persons who send money to this company for any of their remedies will, I am sure, receive honorable treatment and the goodswill be sent as promptly as ordered.

HERE'S A NEW COUNTRY!

NEW HOPE! NEW OPPORTUNITIES! THE LAND of SUNSHINE and PLENTY

MILD CLIMATE, FERTILE SOIL, CHEAP LANDS.

The building of the Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf Railroad - Port Arthur Route-has opened up a country in Western Missouri and Arkansas that cannot be excelled as an agricultural and fruit growing country. No other country in America presents so many "golden opportunities" to the homeseeker, manufacturer or speculator. It is a land of sunshine and plenty, where you can work out of doors 12 months in the year instead of six months. No hot winds in summer, no blizzards in winter. Lands are cheap along this new line of road, because this country has heretofore been remote from railroad. Mild climate, healthy and pleasant. You should also see the new division town of Mena, Polk Co., Ark. It is a good illustration of what pluck and enterprise can do—build a city of 2,500 people in 90 days. Mena is surrounded by a tributary country capable of sus-taining a city of 100.000 people.

Homeseeker's tickets-one fare for the round trip, plus $2.00 — can be bought at all principal northern and eastern railroad points on Nov. 17th, Dec. 1st and 15th. Don't miss these opportunities.

The Maiden's Sorrow.

C EVEN long years has the desert rain Dropp'd clods that hide thy face, Seven long years of pain I have thought of Thought of thy fate in the distant west, Dying with none that loved thee near. They who flung the earth on thy breast Turn'd from the spot without a tear.

There, I think, on that lonely grave, Violets spring in the soft May shower; There in the summer breezes wave Crimson phlox and moccasin flower.

There the turtles alight, and there Feeds with her fawn the timid doe; There, when the winter woods are bare, Walks the wolf on the crackling snow.

Soon wilt thou wipe my tears away; All my task upon earth is done; My poor father, old and gray, Slumbers beneath the church-yard

In the dreams of my lonely bed. Ever thy form before me seems; All night long I talk with the dead, All day long I think of my dreams.

This deep wound that bleeds and aches, This long pain, a sleepless pain— When the Father my spirit takes I shall feel it no more again.

It is surely a pretty custom in Siberia only sixty days. that the mother of a family should spend her mornings, or even an occasional morning, surrounded by her daughters, all engaged in the presumably pleasant and surely profitable occupation of spinning. Whether golf stockings or anything else may be the result, the process is so picturesque and so agreeable that it ought surely to be encouraged. Probably the beginning of this custom in America may be traced to the example of the Princess of Wales, who learned to spin some time since and has produced many astonishing evidences of her skill. The Duchess of Fife is the latest prominent convert to the craze, her wheel being an exquisite affair of black walnut

NATTY GOWNS FOR SPRING DAYS.

Outing Sults for 1897. Ordinary folk await with the keenest interest the advent of what in ordinary parlance is called the "outing industry. suit"-the all-round dress which the girl of limited wardrobe finds so serviceable during the spring and summer. The shape and style of this costume is pretty well decided upon for the coming months. It should have a rather wide skirt with the fullness carried to the back and a box coat that is cut off straight at the walst. The material used is English serge or Scotch tweed and the gown must, of course, be braided. The sleeves are small lege'-mutton, the collar is at present high, as on the winter coat. Everything points to the general use of the turndown coat collar later in the season, however, and if you have a suit made now it is best to use that. Since red is the season's color, cardinal, rather than blue serge, will be favored. The shade selected should be rather deep, and don't make the mistake of wear ing other than a scarlet hat with it.

A Perplexing Situation.

C. R. S. is a widow with one child. In the social circle where she moves there is a man to whom she is devotedly attached. He tells her that he likes her better than any other woman in the world, but yet he never talks of love of the sort she desires. He often visits her, and says he enjoys her society very much, but never talks love to her, and does not seem to have any for her. She is very unhappy in consequence, and asks what she can do to win his love. Answer: There is an old saying that the arrows of love are sometimes eccentric and do not reach the spot they were almed for. It is one of the most difficult of undertakings to win love. For some strange reason love seems to be a rather sudden and spontaneous growth, and comes at no one's beck or bidding. Occasionally love is won by a long series of acts of devotion, but such cases are exceptional. The only thing you can do is to make yourself more entertaining When Answering Advertisements, Please and agreeable than any one else he Other jackets are on the order of the knows, and so impress him with your sterling qualities that he will naturally turn to you for association and good- | One pretty coat fastens on the chest fellowship. broidery, are more used. For little girls the skirts are made in one piece, with a yoke, or sewed on to a deep, plain bodice, so that there will be no constriction at the waist line. The yoke is often of insertion, and a ruffle edges it where the slip skirt joins it. The flounce at the foot is a deep one of embroidery, showing beneath a scanter, shorter Van Dyke ruffle of plain goods.

The skirts for girls somewhat older are mounted on a shaped yoke that fits smoothly about the hips. Sometimes they are of embroidered skirting, sometimes of dotted muslin, and sometimes of plain cambric, trimmed elaborately with lace or embroidery. The ruffles are headed by broad bands of beading, through which ribbons are drawn, tying here and there in dainty little bows.

The new spring coat will have variety in style to recommend it, but the one which is expected to lead is the Watteau sacque, with plain straight fronts and a plait in the back, and cut so that it outlines the figure at the side, reefer, fit more closely in the back, and are either single or double breasted. and falls away below to show the vest
